Highlights from OD2A Evaluation findings for drughelp.care
Year One (September, 2019 - August, 2020)

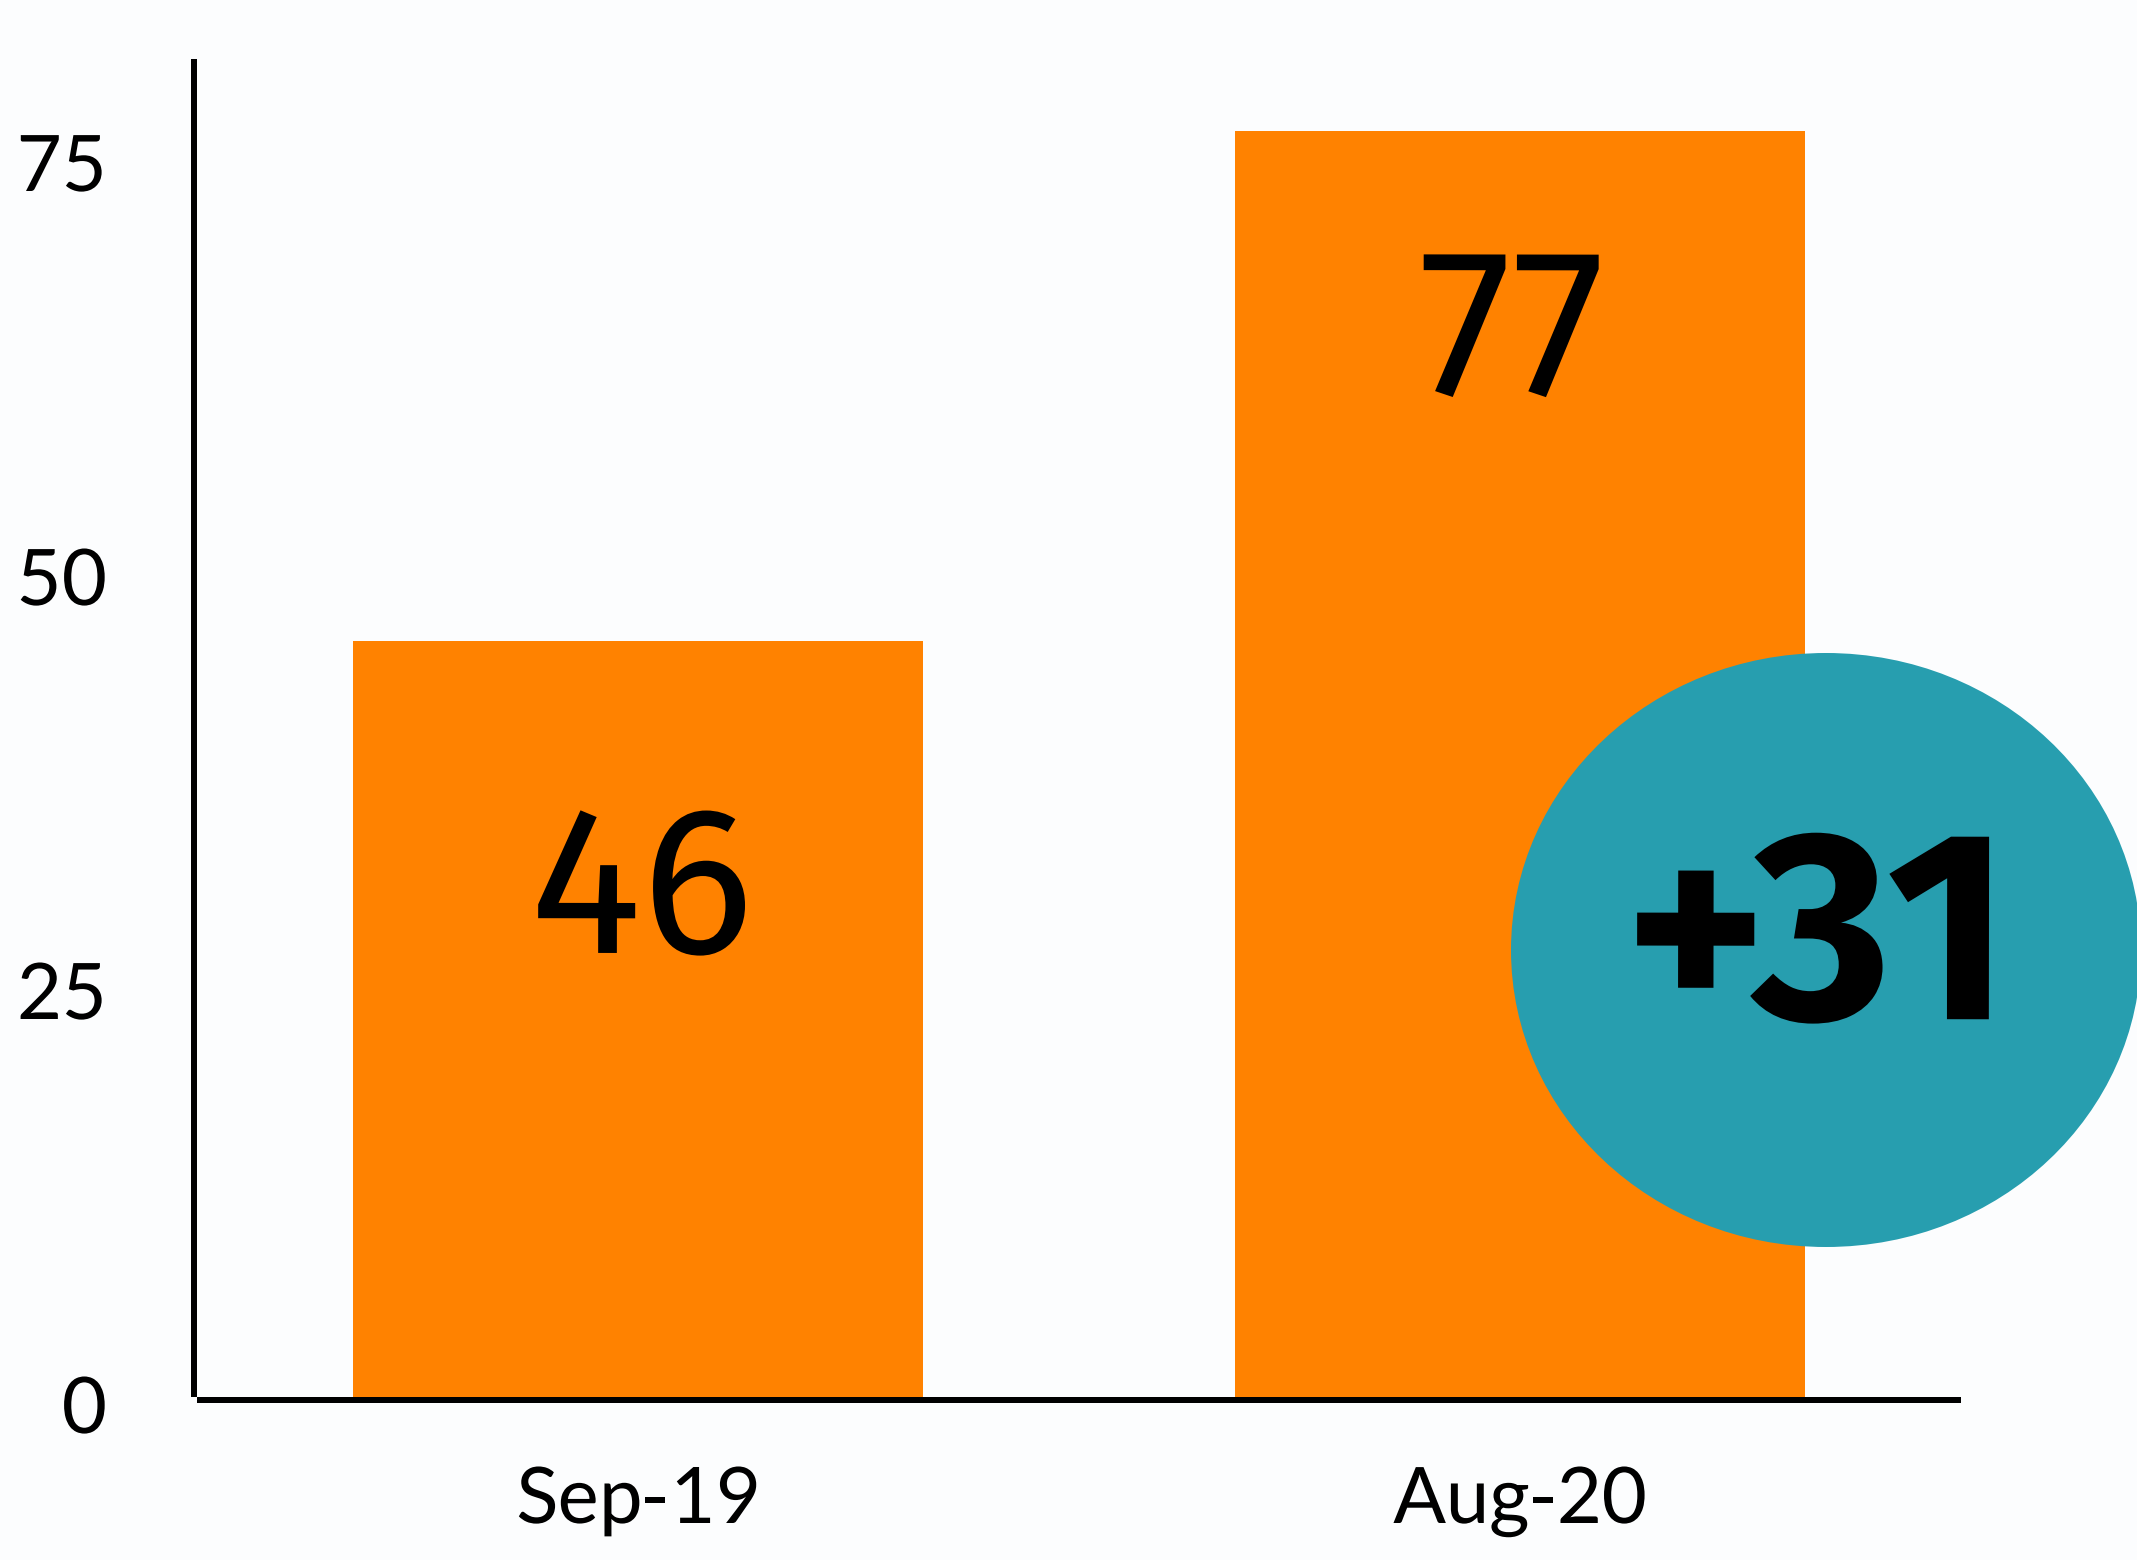

Drughelp.care is a free searchable website that matches persons with substance use disorder with available treatment services by allowing treatment providers to list the number of open treatment slots daily.

To evaluate the web-based technology's effectiveness in reaching those seeking treatment, we tracked the number of visitors to the web app, the total page views, the number of registered agencies and treatment services, and the number of agencies regularly providing on-demand information on available slots and wait time for their services.
