The Applicant should have experience keeping honey bees and be able to recognize honey bee pests and diseases. The Applicant should be responsible and respectful of people, the bees and the environment. They should inspect the colonies in apiaries registered in Cuyahoga County and maintain records of the inspections. The law requires that each apiary be registered by June 1. Sometime that season, the inspector will inspect the apiaries and if necessary, make recommendations to improve the health of the colonies. Unless directed otherwise by the Ohio Department of Agriculture, the inspections should take place between April 1 and October 31 when the weather and temperature are favorable to open a hive for inspection.

The applicant must have a reliable and properly insured vehicle to travel throughout the County as they conduct apiary inspections. It is very important to continue this inspection program to stop the spread of American foulbrood, other serious diseases and pests that have been found in Ohio.
